THE POPE.

Address by Archbishop Spalding.

Last evening the Academy of Music was well filled on the occasion of Bishop Spalding, of Baltimore, delivering a lecture on the temporal power of the Pope of Rome—the proceeds to be appropriated towards the payment for the new school-house of the Church of St. James, in West Philadelphia. It is estimated that three thousand persons were present. The music was rendered by the band of La Salle College, under the supervi-sion of the Christian Brotherhood. There were on the stage the theologians of the College of St. Charles Borromeo, the Christian Brothers, and a number of priests and other dignitaries of the Church-among them the

Rev. Mr. O'Connor, ex-Bishop of Pittsburg. After a creditable musical performance, Bishop Spalding was introduced by Bishop Wood. The lecture was full of historical interest, and was listened to with profound attention. The Bishop commenced his address from the time King Pepin ceded to the Catholic Church the territory known as Rome, in order that the acknowledged head of the Church should not be subjected to any other power than that which comes from on

The distinguished lecturer alluded to the persecution of the Church by the Lombards, and other attempts to destroy it since that period, all of which finally resulted in the complete triumph of the Church. He considered the present attempt to take from the Pope his temporal power pretty much the same as those of ancient times, and he had no fear but that the Church, now represented by two hundred millions of people, would again triumph, and its sun shine with greater brilliancy than ever before. On this point he had no fear of the final result, for the Church must triumph over all its enemies, for hell itself cannot

The lecture required nearly two hours in delivery, after which the vast audience separated, highly gratified with having listened to so eloquent an address.

WASHINGTON.

DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENCE RELATIVE TO THE FRANCO-PRUSSIAN WAR.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9. ACCOMPANYING THE President's message to Congress was a large mass of documents from the De-partment of State, including correspondence of the United States Ministers in Europe on the Franco-German war, from which the following points are extracted: Acting Secretary of State Davis, September 6, telegraphed Minister Washburne as fol-

"If the Provisional Government has actual conrolf the Provisional Government has actual con-trol and possession of power, and is acknowledged by the French people, so as to be in point of fact a de facto government, of which you will be able to decide by the time this reaches you, you will not hesitate to recognize it."

And on the same day Mr. Davis telegraphed:

"It appearing by your last dispatch that the new government is fully installed, and Paris remains tranquil, you will recognize it as soon as the situation in your judgment shall justify. Tender the congratulations of the President and people of the United States on the successful establishment of a republican government."
On the 7th of September Mr. Davis further tele-

On the 7th of September Mr. Davis further tele-graphed: "Berthemy asks, under instructions from Favre, whether the public sentiment in America has changed since the change of government in France," adding, on his part, that until now the Republican press in this country has expressed strong sympathy with Germany. I reply: The government maintains a strict neutrality and will continue so tade. That he cannot wonder the neogovernment maintains a strict neutrality and will continue so to do. That he cannot wonder the people have little sympathy for a dynasty which countenanced giving aid to rebels during our war and tried to establish a monarchy on our southern borders. That in my judgment the feeling to which he alluded was not against France or the French people of which he is as computent to judge as L and ple, of which he is as competent to judge as I, and that the disposition of this government is shown in the order of the President already given to recognize the new government.

Minister Motley wrote to Secretary Fish, August Minister Motley wrote to Secretary Fish, August 11, that on the 9th he sent a telegram in these words: "It is an authentic fact that the French government telegraped to London yesterday to know if General Lee is here, or whether he is expected. The supposition is that a military command is to be offered him. I am not aware that General Lee is in London, or that he is expected here. The fact, however, that the French government should show such anxiety to obtain the assistance of military talent from so distant a quarter would seem to argue some want of confidence in would seem to argue some want of confidence in the government of their armies."

Secretary Fish, September 9, telegraphed to Minister Bancroft: "Mr. Washburne telegraphs that France requested the United States to join the other Powers in the efforts for peace. The uniform policy and true interest of the United States is not to join the European Powers in reference to the European question. The President strongly desires to see the war arrested and the blessings of peace secured. If Germany also desires to have the good offices of the United States interposed the President will be glad to contribute all the aid in his power to secure the restoration of peace hetween the two great Powers now at war, and with whom the United States has so many traditions of friendship. Ascertain if North Germany desires such offices, but without making a tender thereof, unless assured they will be accepted."

On September 11 Mr. Bancroft telegraphed Mr. Fish: "No time now for America to intervene. Germany rejects foreign interference. Every other Power holds back. America would stand alone, and unable to accomplish anything. Our interest and dignity require us at present to stand aloof." On the 30th of September the Secretary of State wrote Mr. Bancroft: The reasons which you pre-sent against American intervention between sent against American intervention between France and Germany are substantially among the considerations which determined the President in the course and policy indicated to you in the cable dispatches from this office on the 9th, and in re-dispatches from this office on the 9th, and in rejecting all idea of mediation, unless upon the joint request of both of the warring Powers. It continues to be the hope of the President, as it is the interest of the people of this country, that the unhappy war in which France and Germany are engaged should find an end.

On the lith of November the Secretary sent the following to Mr. Bancroft:

Sir: The refusal of the German authorities at the investment of Paris to allow the United States Minister there to send a messenger to London with a pouch with dispatches from his legation, unless the centents of the pouch should be unscaled, must be regarded as an uncourteous proceeding, which cannot be acquiesced in by this government. Blockade, by both sea and land, is a military measure, for the reduction of an enemy's fortress, by pretenting the access of relief from without, and preventing the access of rolled from without, and by compelling the troops and inhabitants to surrender for want of supplies. When, however, the blockaded fortress happens to be the capital of the county where the diplomatic representative of a neutral States resides, has the blockading force a right fito cut him off from all intercourse by letter with the outer world, and even with his own government? No such right is either expressly recognized by public law, or is even alluded to in any treatise on the subject. The right of the legation, however, is fully acknowledged, and as incident to that right the privilege of sending and receiving messages. The privilege is acknowledged in unqualified terms.

There is no exception or reservation looking to the possibility of blockade of a capital by a hostile force. Although such blockades are not of frequent occurrence, their liability to happen must have presented itself to the minds of the writers on public law, and if they had supposed that the right of sending messengers was merged in or subordinate to the belligerent rights of the assailant they certainly would have said so. Indeed, the rights of legation under such circumstance must be regarded as paramount to any belligerent right. They ought not to be questioned or curtailed, unless the attackas paramount to any belligerent right. They ought not to be questioned or curtailed, unless the attack-ing party has good reason to believe they will be abused, or unless some military necessity which, upon proper statement must be regarded as obvious, shall require the curtailment. The condition upon which the sending of messengers was offered was humiliating, and could not be accepted by any diplomatic agent with any self-respect. Correspondence between these officers and their correspondence between these officers and their governments is always more or less confidential, and it is unreasonable to suppose that its inspection by the blockading force should be permitted. Indeed, the requirement of such a con lition must be regarded as tantamount to an imputation both upon the integrity of the Minister and the neutrality of his government. You will consequently represented a region to be accounted to a property of the authority. remonstrate against the exercise of the authority adverted to as being contrary to that paramount right of legation which every independent nation ought to enjoy, and in which all are equally interested.

Prussia has heretofore been a leading champion of the rights of neutrals on the ocean. She has even, during the existing war, made acknowledged sacrifices to her faith and consistency in that re-spect. The course of her arms on land does not seem to warrant or require any enforcement of ex-treme belligerent claims in that quarter as against neutrals. An analogous privilege of legation was, upon several occasions, successfully asserted by this government during the late war between Brazil and her allies on the one side and Paraguay on the other.

on the other. Mr. Washburne, Minister to Paraguay, applied for a permit to take him through the hostile lines to Ascuncion, his destination. The application, though at first rejected, was ultimately granted. Application was subsequently made for leave for General McMahon, his successor, to pass the same lines for the vessel which carried him to bring back Mr. Washburne. This also, though at first refused, was ultimately granted. There is reason to believe the course taken by this government on these occasions was approved by other governments. It is probable that other governments would also sanction the claim of the United States in the case. (Signed)

Hamilton Fish.

EUROPEAN AFFAIRS.

LAST NIGHT'S DESPATCHES—THE WAR IN FRANCE—THE BASTERN QUESTION. Tours, Dec. 7 .- A despatch from Le Mans says a balloon arrived from Paris, with news from the capital to the night of the 6th. No military operations of importance had occur-red since the 3d. General Trochu had received a letter from General von Moltke announcing the defeat of the Army of the Loire, and offering safe conduct of such persons as might be designated to verify the news. The offer was refused by the Government, who at once issued a proclamation to the people of Paris, giving information of the proposition of General von Moltke, and their reply thereto, and saying "even if the statement were true, they would still have a right to expect a great movement of the nation to their assistance, and will continue the Advices from reliable parties show that the recent successes of the Parisians were greater than had been supposed. When the balloon started firing was heard south of Paris.

Journals of Tours announce changes in the rmy of the Loire, which is divided into three corps, under command of Bourbaki, Chanazay, and Bellot.

Tours, Dec. 7 .- (Special to the N. Y. World.)-The Government states that the Army of the Loire is at its old quarters, but the locality is not given. Despair has seized some here, and the spirits of others have risen to meet the desperate condition of affairs. The Government declares that its reverses were only of temporary importance. Many railway trains, loaded with cattle, sheep, and provisions had been concentrated near Orleans for the succor of Paris. They were all saved. The evacuation of Orleans was caused by the demoralization of some new French troops and the mistaken strategy and indecision of General d'Aurelles, who allowed two corps to be overwhelmed by the whole Prussian army, although he had 200,000 men

Official returns state that the army of the Loire consisted of 300,000 men with 1000 guns. In the engagements of the 3d and 4th only 60,000 French fought against 150,000 Germans. The plan of campaign was devised by Gambetta, added by Devere, a young officer of engineers, and was either not carried out by D'Aurelles or the plan itself was fatally erroneous. BERLIN, Dec. 7 .- A despatch from the King to the Queen confirms the report that 10,000 prisoners, seventy-seven cannon and four gunboats were captured at Orleans. The King adds: - "Von Twesten has carried Gidy-Janney and Princes by storm, and Manteuffel occupied Ruen after victorious encounters. Goeben now holds the city. Eight heavy guns were found in the entrenchments."

Schwerin, Dec. 7 .- A telegram from the Duke of Mecklenburg states that the loss of the Meeklenburg troops in the battles from the 2d to the 4th were 3200. The enemy lost 2000 killed and 400 prisoners.

LONDON, Dec. 9 .- (Special to N. Y. World.) -Allen writes from St. Petersburg, the 2d, that a warlike feeling is prevailing over the whole empire. The arrival at Sebastopol of Gortschakoff's circular created a universi feeling of joy. The notice given by the Emperor to the Reserve Corps, to hold them-selves in readiness, is considered of great importance. The measure has not been resorted to since the Crimean war. Russia is committed to a bold line of conduct and is resolved to carry it out in spite of all opposition. It has been announced by the Emperor that 40,000,000 roubles will be devoted to extraordinary war expenses. By the 1st of January 49,700 remodelled guns and 150,000 breech-loaders will be ready for sale.
